New Erie County Planning director named

Erie, PA – Erie County Executive Kathy Dahlkemper is pleased to announce the hiring of Amy Murdock as the new director of the Erie County Department of Planning.

Murdock, who previously worked as a program administrator in the department, has been serving as interim director since the departure of the previous director, Kathy Wyrosdick, in January.

“We are so pleased to have Amy take over the reins at the Planning Department,” Dahlkemper said. “She has been an integral part of the Planning team for some time, working to better serve our municipalities and our residents. I am confident that under her leadership, the Planning Department will continue to grow as a valuable resource in Erie County.”

Murdock received her master’s degree from Penn State University and bachelor’s degree from Gannon University. During her time as a program administrator in the Erie County Department of Planning, she oversaw the Coastal Resources Management and Greenways programs. She also launched a municipal stormwater assistance program.

She previously worked at National Fuel Gas and the Erie County Prothonotary Office.
